

Don Detrick was raised on a farm near Newberg, Oregon and graduated from high school there. He has been married to Jodi for more than forty years. Jodi is a writer, speaker and life coach. She formerly served as the NWMN Women's Ministries Director, Director of the national Women in Ministry Network, and as a writer for the Seattle Times. Together they have three grown children: Kristi, Mark and Jana, and three granddaughters.

Don attended Eugene Bible College where he received a B.S. in pastoral ministries. He also holds a B.A. in biblical studies from Baptist Christian College, an M.A. in counseling from Luther Rice Seminary, and a doctorate (D.Min.) in missional leadership from the Assemblies of God Theological Seminary. Don loves to write, and has had numerous articles published in periodicals such as The Pentecostal Evangel, Christian Reader, Enrichment, Pulpit Helps, and Sunday Digest. Don is the author of two books, Preventing Self-Sabotage, and Growing Disciples Organically: The Jesus Method of Spiritual Formation. He was ordained by the Oregon District of the Assemblies of God in 1980.

After pastoring for a number of years in Oregon, Don became the senior pastor of Bethel Church in Chehalis, Washington, serving for thirteen years in that location. During his tenure there, the church more than doubled in size and added a major building addition. Don has served both the Oregon and Northwest Districts of the Assemblies of God as a presbyter and executive presbyter. He also serves as a General Presbyter for the Assemblies of God and as a member of the board of Northwest University.

In April of 2004, Don was elected as Associate Network Leader and Secretary/Treasurer for the Northwest Ministry Network. He presently serves in that role, serving more than 300 churches and nearly 1400 credentialed ministers. He also enjoys being an adjunct professor at Northwest University and the Assemblies of God Theological Seminary at Evangel University. In his spare time, he loves to do landscape photography, write, ride motorcycles, collect and restore antiques (with a particular fondness for clocks and phonographs), raise bonsai, and spoil his granddaughters.
