MOMENT'S REFLECTION

"Your will be done, on earth as it is in heaven." -Matthew 6:10

Jesus teaches that we should do the "will of God." Simple, right? Not exactly. It seems to me that three things make this "simple" command of Jesus difficult.

One, we are American Christians. Much of our thinking about life is based on the virtue of individual freedom.

We tend to make decisions based on what we believe is in our best interest. The Christian faith certainly has a place for what I call personal piety. One of our favorite Easter hymns carries the refrain, "And he walks with me, and he talks with me, and he tells me I am his own." But the Christian faith also challenges us to think in larger terms. As Christians we're called to live for the Kingdom and not merely ourselves. That's a challenge for us American Christians.

Two, we're not sure how to conceptualize the will of God. Through the ages the Church has offered three main ways.

- A. The so-called "blue-print" concept of God's will which emphasizes that there is one, perfect, course of action. God has a blueprint for each life. The goal is to find that one way.
- B. The so-called "wisdom" concept of God's will (Garry Friesen) which emphasizes that insofar as we fill our minds with the scriptural wisdom of God's will we have the capacity, and the responsibility, to choose appropriate courses of action. We don't wait for a sign or heaven. We apply biblical wisdom to make decisions.
- C. And then a balance of the two, or what Gordon Smith calls "friendship with God," where we make decisions in dynamic relationship with God through a process of discernment. Both wisdom-responsibility and divine-seeking guidance.

As your pastor, I recommend the merits of ways B and C. I think the goal of the Christian life is to know the mind of Christ. But I believe our best wisdom must always be applied in relationship with Christ. I tend not to believe that there is one right way to live. I tend to believe that Creator God gives us appropriate latitude to choose faithful ways of living.

Finally, how do we decide? Leslie Weatherhead gives the clearest step-by-step process. Listen to your conscience. If it seems right or wrong, it probably is. Use common sense. Seek the counsel of a trusted friend. Read Scripture. Listen to the voice of the Church. Listen for the still small voice of God. -Dan, Lent 2018

Special Lenten Study—"Lord Teach Us to Pray"

On Sundays during Lent (Feb 18—March 25), Dr. Dan Jones and Rev. Casey Tanguay will lead a special Lenten study during the Sunday School Hour—in the Sanctuary. Everyone is invited to participate. Each study is self-contained, so you can attend any or all sessions and still gain an understanding of the material.

Sunday March 11: Feeding Ourselves: What place does self-sufficiency have in Christian life? (Give us this day our daily bread)

Sunday March 18: Writing it Off: What does the reality of our forgiveness say to our treatment of others? (And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who have trespassed against us)

Sunday March 25: Crying For Help: How does a Christian respond to the enormity of evil in the world? (Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil)

There is a place for you at our table...

Fusion: a merging of spirituality into real everyday life

We have a new “dinner church” format for Fusion and you’re invited to join us! We gather monthly at the church for lively discussion centered around a delicious meal. Following the example of the early church, we share our lives and faith around filled tables. These festive dinner parties are one way that we celebrate Jesus’ presence among us and how we grow in our faith with one another.

Our next Fusion DINNER CHURCH will be in April (exact date TBA). Childcare is available. RSVP’s are helpful. Contact Rev. Casey for more information.

SATURDAY, APRIL 7TH AT 8:30AM (FELLOWSHIP HALL)

Come early to hang out and have coffee with friends as our volunteer chef team prepares a tasty breakfast. (if you can cook - join the team!) We'll eat together then hear our guest speaker, the one and only Eric Dacon. This can be a time of leaning into God's Word together and discussing topics that we need to not only talk about but also DO something about. God has uniquely called and equipped men to be servant leaders in their families, community and in the church, and to fulfill the mission that he has given us to REACH and EQUIP Everyday. ALL men are welcome!
