RESIDENT OF THE MONTH MARGARET KUMMERFELDT

Margaret Kummerfeldt was born August 28, 1922, in Nairobi, Kenya. Her African name is "Kaleche." By the time she was two years old, her family had moved out to the country, a very small community, where her father built their ranch home out of mud and wattle bricks, which they made by hand. They lived here very frugally. Margaret explains that the area where she grew up, Kenya, at the time was very similar to the way our early pioneers and settlers lived here in the Western United States. Her earliest memory is of sitting on a horse with her brother, Buster. Her father was the first chief game warden of Tsavo National Park in Kenya and he had a very strong influence on her as she was growing up since she and her father were very close. Growing up in the "wilds" of Africa, she had many unique pets that most of us would never consider "pets." Put that together with the fact that her mother was wonderful with animals, they had quite a menagerie! There was the Martial eagle they caught as a fledgling and trained, the chimpanzee, Lucy, that enjoyed washing clothes, Chewy the cheetah, who originally belonged to the Governor of Nairobi and he gave it to Margaret's mother. They had an Egyptian goose, hyrax, bushbabies and lots of dogs and cats. She can recall lions sitting on their veranda, although these, of course, were not pets! The rafters in their house served as homes for some of these pets, too. She and her brother Buster both learned to hunt "for the pot" at a very young age, and would bring home gazelles, congoni, hearty beast, as well as other animals.

Hunting was a very big part of Margaret's growing up. She still has in her possession the rifle she hunted with when she was young. Her father taught the children about taxidermy, so they both became very adept at that craft. Some of these stuffed animals have since gone to museums. She learned to be very cautious of snakes in the area...cobras, pythons, puff adders and coral snakes. Their dogs were good at warning them when a snake was in the vicinity! Her father told her wonderful stories of Frederick Selous, a famous British explorer, officer, hunter and conservationist, famous for his exploits in Southeast Africa. Her father knew him quite well and he had many interesting stories to share with Margaret and Buster. The family also employed a garden boy, "Mwindo," who was like one of the family. You were expected in Kenya to employ others in order to feed the economy and keep everyone working. Hence, house help became part of the family.

Margaret's best friend was her brother, Buster, as there were no other children around and they relied very much on each other for companionship. As for school, Margaret was taught by the neighbor's governess and she says, quite adamantly, that she "hated" school and was a "rotten" student! Margaret's Uncle Phil was a "great white hunter," which means he was a guide in Africa, and he also played an important and impressionable role in her life. She spent three years in the British Army and has some stories to share with us about that, too!

Margaret met her husband on their "farm." He had come down to Kenya representing the Grumman Company building airplanes for the war. These Grumman employees would come to the "farm" for R and R when they had some free time, and her husband was one of these men. Together they have six children: Peter, Keith, twins Ronald and Sue, Arthur and Glen.

Margaret had the privilege of knowing Ernest Hemingway, and she has a signed copy of his book, The Old Man and the Sea, inscribed with "To Margaret." In 1909 Teddy Roosevelt wrote her father a letter seeking information on hunting in Kenya. Roosevelt learned that her father was considered the best in his field. As a result, Margaret's father accompanied Roosevelt on his 1909 hunting trip to Africa.

There are far too many fascinating, humorous stories and interesting facts surrounding Margaret's life to cover in this space. She has consented to share her stories and adventures with us in the Daily Scene. In the meantime, stop by the Remington and chat with Margaret a while. Share a cup of tea. She is a lovely, gracious, kind lady who has so much of life to share with us!

MEET STAFF MEMBER GREG KIENITZ

Hi there, Everybody: My name is Greg Kienitz (kee-nitz). You all have seen me around the dining rooms and kitchen, but I consider myself a jack-of-all-trades. I have been here for about six months now, and I am thrilled to be working with all of you lovely people.

A few things about me: First off, I'm originally from a small town in Wisconsin, where I was raised on farms until I was 18 years old. I've lived here in Hamilton for the past 13 years and love the valley. I am a big fan of astronomy and science and I enjoy singing, reading and just expanding my knowledge of the world around me. I also really enjoy having interesting conversation on important issues. As some of you know, I'm expecting my first child (Rylie) in a few weeks. I am so excited to be a father and I appreciate all of your advice and wisdom while I experience this for the first time.

I feel so blessed to be in such a positive environment with such lovely people and I have already learned so much in my short time here. I look forward to continuing my journey here at Sapphire Lutheran Homes.

SAPPHIRE GOES TO WASHINGTON

Sapphire Lutheran Homes belongs to a national organization called LeadingAge. The mission of LeadingAge is to expand the world of possibilities for the aging. Last year at the annual meeting members of the LeadingAge organizations were called to "Be the Voice" and fight for seniors in their communities. Last month, on behalf of Sapphire Lutheran Homes and LeadingAge, Cole flew to Washington, D.C. to be our voice and ensure that our senators and representative heard from their constituents as it relates to aging services. Cole had the pleasure and privilege to meet with Monica Carmean (staff of Senator Tester) and Matthew Ketron (staff of Senator Daines), as well as Amanda Kaster and Micah Chambers (staff of Representative Zinke), to discuss a number of issues and provide real life examples that have affected residents of Sapphire Lutheran Homes. These relate to Medicare, Affordable Senior Housing, Veteran Services and technology that service rural communities. The following is a brief explanation of the individual issues discussed with the senators and representative.

Medicare is an essential source of coverage for post-acute care. Private long-term care insurance, in its current form, has proven inaccessible and/or unattractive for most Americans, and currently covers less than 12 percent of all long-term care costs nationwide. Cole asked Senator Tester, Senator Daines and Representative Zinke to support bi-partisan House Bill 1571 and bi-partisan Senate Bill 843 that would correct the problem of Medicare beneficiaries being kept in the hospital for extended periods "under observation" without being admitted as inpatients. Beneficiaries in this situation do not meet the three-day stay requirement for Medicare coverage of any post-acute care they may need following their release from the hospital. Currently they end up paying out of pocket, in some cases thousands of dollars, for the care they need, or they simply go without care. The above legislation would count any time a Medicare beneficiary spends in the hospital toward that three-day stay requirement. The way hospitals administer care has evolved and so too should the ways in which coverage is secured.

Affordable Housing: America's seniors face a severe housing crisis. Statistics state that by 2020 the elderly homeless population will increase by 33% and more than double by 2050. Currently three and a half million elders live below the poverty level. National statistics reflect our own in that for every affordable housing unit that becomes available there are ten or more residents on the waiting list. Currently Sapphire has a 20-person waiting list for its affordable housing. Cole urged our senators and representative to preserve, fund and expand affordable housing, specifically sighting needs for the Section 202 capital advance grant program to allow construction of new affordable housing for seniors, as well as continue to fund the Service Coordinator Housing Services Grant.

Technology Basic internet connectivity is an essential requirement for delivering a broad array of technology-enabled services to older adults. It is essential for applications that support health and wellness, including telehealth. The technology, if applied correctly, reduces loneliness and isolation and increases quality of life by enhancing independence among residents. Cole asked Senator Tester, Senator Daines and Representative Zinke to support bi-partisan House Bill 4111 and bi-partisan Senate Bill 1916, which would allow skilled nursing facilities to request services from telecommunications carriers through the USF to receive telecom services at comparable rates to those charged for similar services in less costly urban areas.

Veteran Affairs: Cole urged the senators and representative to help solve the growing concerns our industry has regarding VA benefits and their coordination and implementation. We must do a better job of educating our veterans on their benefits and their spouses' benefits. At the conclusion of each meeting Cole thanked the respective staff member and invited the senator or representative to Sapphire Lutheran Homes so that they could see firsthand what Sapphire's community has to offer. Our continued hope is that Senator Tester, Senator Daines and Representative Zinke will continue to support aging services, both nationally and here in Montana.

APRIL SNOW SHOWERS

One April morning
we awoke to snow.
Gram looked out the window
And said, "Oh no!"

"What's wrong, Grandma?
We can get out the sled!"
"John, I'm worried about my flower bed."

"My red tulips
were about to open.
That they didn't die,
is what I'm hopin'."

"My iris blades
were coming along fine.
If they got killed
I'll do nothing but whine."

"I'm quite concerned
about my peonies.
They'll die for sure
if it was a hard freeze."

"My lilac trees
were starting to bud out.
If the snow got them
I'll just scream and shout."

"Let's get the snow off
with my kitchen broom.
We might save some of them
so they can bloom."

We put on our shoes
and went out to check.
I saw some flowers
poking up their neck.

"Look at these yellow flowers!
They're not froze!"
"John, they're dandelions...
you can't kill those!"
