Pray for our Persecuted

Pastor Threatened for Repairing Damaged Churches February 28

A Cuban pastor has been repeatedly threatened and harassed for helping repair churches damaged in a 2018 hurricane. The Cuban government considers the repairs illegal because it does not recognize any church building constructed after the 1959 revolution. But the buildings, some constructed without walls or floors, have for many years served believers who wish to worship without government interference. The pastor and other believers work on the church structures overnight to avoid interference from authorities, but one of the pastor's neighbors has threatened him with a machete because of the repair work he is doing. The pastor also has been denied car registration and has not been allowed to put a sign on his own church. "At this moment, the church in Cuba needs more attention," he said. "Pray for us to remain faithful under persecution." <https://www.icommittoprayer.com>
