Dear DeDe:

Shalom. Thank you so much for your prayers and support. This is such a special time to be in Israel. Thank you for being part of this.

“I came to believe Yeshua is the Messiah and then I told my family and friends. It’s really hard. I am losing many of them and yet I know it’s better to follow Him.” I have heard this several times recently. There are new believers in Israel. This is exciting. The need is great to disciple and encourage those who face the cost of going home and saying they believe in Yeshua. I’m meeting regularly with two such new believers and have put others in touch with men to disciple them.

“I’m curious about these things.” By “these things,” they are referring to Jewish people who believe in Yeshua. And I’m hearing this a lot. Let me tell you about Tova.* Tova is 27. She finished her army service and traveled to exotic parts of the world. She was seeking art, colors, textures...things that would spark her creativity to another level. She returned to Israel to study design. When we met, it came up that I used to design eyeglasses.

We talked about the creative process, colors, textures...and then I mentioned that I think it’s one of the ways we can see how we are created in God’s image, God being the ultimate creator. From there, we went into a wonderful discussion about relationship and connection with God. It seems that is something she always wondered about: how we can know God, but not be caught up in “the politics of religion.” Please pray for Tova. We have met several times to talk spiritual things and I think the next time we meet, we will start to study a gospel together. And pray for all those like Tova saying, “I’m curious about these things.”

Our team in Tel Aviv has been meeting to plan outreach events, bringing together believers and those who don’t yet know Yeshua, and praying for God to do more than what we can only dream.

In mid-March I will head to the States for a month to share Messiah in the Passover presentations at churches and detailed updates on what is happening in Israel and how to pray.

If your church is interested in hearing more, let me know. There are still a few openings in my schedule or we can plan for fall. I’m excited about the opportunity to have more people praying for Israel and to experience the amazing ways Passover also points to Yeshua the Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world.

B’shalom with much thanks,

Robin
